

Anne Sherman Biography:

“Anne started researching her own family history over 35 years ago as part of a college course on report writing and says it is the only homework she has never completed as that research is still on going as new records become available. As part of her Post Graduate Diploma in Genealogical, Palaeographic & Heraldic Studies with Strathclyde University in 2015, Anne researched the 'Life of the Early Victorian Deaf and Dumb'. Part of that project included original research looking at the occupations open to them in the early Victorian period. Anne turned professional in January 2013 researching, teaching and doing presentations and is one of the early members of the Register of Qualified Genealogists known as RQG.”
