

Colin Bradshaw Biography.

By “trade” I am a geographer, but I have a very wide range of interests. Some of you know that I give local history talks about Beverley. The outdoors has always been a passion – climbing, kayaking, wild camping. These pursuits inevitably led me to have a keen interest in natural history, especially birds and flowers.

In recent years I have been a Voluntary Ranger for the North York Moors National Park, which allows me to give back something to the national park movement. At times I also work for the Yorkshire Wildlife Trust.
