

Simon Seligman, biography

From 1991 - 2010, Simon worked at Chatsworth for both the 11th and 12th Dukes of Devonshire and their Duchesses, and came to know the place intimately. He has lectured extensively on Chatsworth in the USA and UK, and was involved in the promotion and interpretation of its collections and exhibitions, in a number of different roles, eventually as Head of Communications.

He still lives with his family in the Derbyshire Peak District, and as well as being a cultural lecturer, he is a Life Coach in private practice, and also works part-time as Communications & Memberships officer for John Ruskin's charity, the Guild of St George.

He is also Trustee of two arts charities, Five Senses Music and Opera on Location.